JAMAICA PLAIN FRIENDLY SOCIETY

1900 - 1901.

Our society has certainly never been more needed than in the past year, and we should be glad if we could tell our friends in detail of the many cases of trouble and suffering which it has been in our power to relieve. Such details, however, cannot be given in a brief report, and we can only speak of a few special cases.

One is that of a German musician, whose need was reported to us early in the winter. The man had just died, the woman was weak and ill, a boy of six and a young baby both ill with whooping cough. Kind neighbors had attended to the first call for help, and then one of our visitors was sent to the family. Everything was needed, rent, fuel, food, and care for the sick mother and children. As the children could not go to any hospital or institution on account of the contagious disease, a nurse was provided for several weeks by the Jamaica Plain Dispensary, and the other needs of the family were supplied by our society. Later, the visitor was able to get help from some of the musicians with whom the man had been associated. As summer came on, the woman was strong enough to work, and a place in the country was found for her and her oldest child, the baby being placed in the charge of the Infant Asylum. The case required great devotion on the part of the visitor, and a larger expenditure of money than would usually be needed for one family, but we were glad that it was possible for us to help this poor woman through those trying weeks and months. It is hard to estimate what friendliness alone means at such a time. Two invalid sisters were helped with fuel, milk orders and nourishing food for some months, and later the visitor was able to get them both for a time into a hospital.

Another case was that of an invalid man with a wife and three young children. The man had been able to do no work for several months. He and his wife had made a brave struggle, but had come to an end of their savings when we visited them. Some aid in fuel and food was given, also sewing for the woman from our society, which tided them over the winter and spring. The visitor was also able to interest former employers of the woman in the case. Their kindness in giving help and work has lifted a great burden from her heart, but it would have been very difficult for her, without the visitor's help to make her circumstances known to these friends. These are only a few of many cases of sickness which have claimed our special care. Such cases mean much expenditure of time and money, but none seem to us more important.

Sometimes a family is reported to us which, after a little investigation, is found to be unworthy. If we find actual suffering in such a family, especially on the part of little children, temporary help is given, but we cannot consider it right to go on helping, where begging and idleness are preferred to work.

Our society is sometimes criticised for not taking up cases of this sort, but we feel sure that if our critics will take pains to learn the truth by coming to our room and looking up our records, they will understand our reasons, and agree with us in our decisions. Where we have found little children suffering from neglect of parents, we have appealed to the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children, as sometimes the breaking up of a family is the wisest thing to be done. If it is possible to get work for the unemployed, either temporary or permanent, this is our first duty, and it is especially gratifying to the visitors when their efforts in this direction are successful. Small loans also prove sometimes the best method of helping those who are temporarily in trouble. Such a loan was made last winter by a visitor to a young German painter with a wife and child. The man had had no work for some weeks, and with debts, owing to sickness and special circumstances, they were penniless in midwinter. No charity was asked for, but the loan was very thankfully received, and this summer it has been returned with a pleasant letter, telling that now better times had come, and the debts are gradually being paid off. A number of applicants have been reported by us to the churches to which they belonged, our society often co-operating with the churches in their care.

Various hospitals, the St. Vincent de Paul and other societies have been communicated with, and through such co-operation many people have been relieved and cared for. The Dispensary physician, also, has been always ready to attend to our calls in cases of sickness. Our sewing has been given to thirty-three women, and this has proved as before a very good form of assistance to many families. A great part of this sewing has again been sent by the Infant Asylum and the Children's and New England Hospitals, our society paying for the work done.

Our aim is always to improve the condition of the families who come under our care. Visitors have many opportunities of showing themselves true friends to those who have first come to their notice through sickness and need, and often this friendly relation has gone on for many years. It is the desire of our committee to have a large number of young women on our list of friendly visitors, those who are willing to fit themselves for this most important part of our work. We believe that there are many in our community who can help in this way, and we shall always be glad to give an opportunity to those who have both the disposition and the time for such services.

It will be noticed by those who read our Treasurer's report this year that our Society is in great need of money. It is many years since we have reported so small a balance, and the last part of our working year was made quite anxious by this condition. We must therefore make a more earnest appeal than usual to all of our friends for generous subscriptions and donations, that we may be ready to meet the calls which are sure to come to us this autumn and winter. Will not our friends bear in mind that ours is the only society in Jamaica Plain for general charitable work, the only centre to which individuals, churches, and other organizations can refer cases which need investigation and help? No doubt, much generous work is done for the poor by individuals and churches in this community, but much would be neglected, if it were not for the existence of our unsectarian society and its visitors.

Our Solicitors will collect subscriptions as usual this autumn, and we hope that all who are called upon may feel the importance of a prompt response to their calls. Money may also be given at any time, to our Treasurer, Mr. E. W. Clark, or to Miss Smith, our agent at Curtis Hall. Our room is open from 10 to 1 on week days, except Saturdays and holidays, from October 1st to May 1st. A list of women needing work of different kinds, among them some competent seamstresses, also a list of men out of work will be found on our agent's books. A supply of well made plain underclothing, also childrens' dresses and aprons, are kept for sale at the Hall.

In closing we wish to express our thanks to all who have helped the society in any way.

Gifts of second-hand clothing, boots or shoes are always most acceptable, as the visitors have many families during the winter who need to be supplied with these articles.
